

Applied Technology Center

DV1 SPRAY GUN HELPS PREPARE STUDENTS FOR A FUTURE IN COLLISION REPAIR AND REFINISHING

At the Applied Technology Center, students are taught on all types of paint application tools. However, a long-time professional refinisher who is now a high school teacher has a favorite tool—the DV1.

CHALLENGE:

The Applied Technology Center offers a collision repair and refinish program located in Rock Hill, SC. The students of this program are asked to use many different tools to ensure they are ready for any job offer, in any shop. Learning to refinish and repair automobiles with excellent paint application solutions is one of the many skills that are critical to a successful finished product.

SOLUTION:

Mark Dellinger, the teacher at Applied Technology Center, requires his students to use all types of tools to accomplish their job. But, he has a favorite, the DV1 family of paint guns. Dellinger said, in a recent Autobody News interview, “the DV1 Basecoat is excellent, the DV1 Clearcoat is a game changer, and the DV1-S brings paint application to an entirely new level.”¹

The DV1 paint gun line helps prepare students to excel in their craft which helps to ensure employment. Using many paint application guns helps the students to learn the skill, and the DV1 gun series helps the students to see what is possible.

BENEFIT:

Repairing and refinishing vehicles has long been part of our culture. But now more than ever, there is a market for keeping our vehicles running longer and looking better. The students from Applied Technology Center and their finishing capabilities allow for successful vehicle longevity. Using the DeVilbiss Automotive Refinishing tools will ensure optimal results for these students as they build their careers in the refinishing industry.

¹Autobody News Staff. “DeVilbiss Automotive Refinishing Wows Collision Repair Instructor with New Lineup of DV1 Spray Guns.” Autobody News, October 2021

DeVilbiss® Automotive Refinishing

+1 800 445-3988 | askus@carlisleft.com | autorefinishdevilbiss.com